CBCP: Communal action working

'People converging on truth; time to discover new brand of people power'

WHAT'S INSIDE

By Beverly T. Matthews

CATHOLIC BISHOPS' CONference of the Philippines
(CBCP) president and Jaco
(Bois) Archbishop Angel
Laguarda yesterday lauded
the Filipino people's successful showing of "civical action," and corruption allegations as blemishing the Arroyo administration.

In an interview on our new Channel 4 show Radio Times presenting Leprosaria (and it was there the discovery of a new breed of sample guests).

We used the large vessel that attended the Mass for Rodrigo Lomaka Jr. on Sunday showed that the public administration of the Filipino people was being served by the aspects of the state outside of the National Broadband Network (NBN) (2012).

This means that the people are slowly converging on the truth. If one person could be so brave as to be willing to tell the truth, then there are good things happening in the country. It is like the political conscience of the people is being stirred," Layman says.

"He said the people should use discretion 'in the kind of people power'—one that would reflect civil society's own 'paradigm shift.'"

"The way to dispense my vote was negative rather than to bring influence and corruption. Most are my people, but not all. So my choice must be more. (The people's thinking has changed, even though they hear to fight corruption. There have been many changes. So this is what we must discover)," said Leandrea.

In a separate statement afterwards, the CPCF president clarified that the buildings' call for communal action rather than conflict was a challenge to the nation's political conscience 'which would elicit creative, imaginative and dynamic responses to political conditions.'

Despite criticism that the UICP had taken a "soft road" on the issue, Leguizamo and the Moss and the police action network had shown that the people had gotten the message of economic reform.

Abstract

"More good things have started to happen," Arnold.

14) and that the Social Doctrine of the Church itself called on the lay people (civil servants) "to identify steps that can be taken in concrete political situations in order to put into effect the principles and values proper to the magisterium."

Planning a successful lesson

"This means that according to the Social Doctrine of the Church, the Bishops are not the only ones who should call for that civil society should identify ways to fight corruption in society," says Dominiotti.

He said that if the collective discussion of the principle led to people agreeing it should be one that was different from what we had experienced twice in the past.

Thrupp's primary interests are 17th and 18th-century English literature and culture, and the history of the novel.

and Moses and Joseph Winkler, respectively, involved the moving of about a million people in Ethiopia. Moses Mauda's more circumstantial road.

On the new challenges, his people power, Laplante posed three questions: "Where does will to lead? What is God through the eyes of the times? What is will?"

Lapcharov said the response of the people is expected to grow louder if more government officials involved in the scandalized 1994 election come out to reach the truth.

"We hope that other congregations and inspired persons will attempt to tell or express as honestly from the truth, those whose commitment has made our society squalid in comparison to the good of powerholders."

There's still hope

Austrian Catholic priest, Lagrèze-Dupuyes, Archbishop of Vienna, said in a statement that the large protest, action and Masses being held for Sobota and for the country's needs for health showed that the two men still hope for justice and peace in the country would be achieved.

The mass action in Haham last Friday and the "Miss for Truth" at La Belle Green Hills on Sunday showed that the people's "mote serious and deliberate communal action has be-

He asked the faithful to "take courage and to continue the positive response." He said Filomena should look towards better prospects in the country's independence appears to be coming, in an end note.

GMA reinstates sacked PCGG whistle-blower

By Jerry E. Espinosa

MANILA (PDI) — PRESIDENT MACAPAGAL-ARROYO has reinstated a whistleblower of the Presidential Commission on Good Government who was sacked last year apparently for blowing the whistle on the PCGG chair's alleged involvement in a P14.9-million illegal stock advance case, among other matters.

Luzviminda (Luz) de la Cruz, executive director of the Presidential Anti-Graft Commission (PAGC), will reinstate his former post and recall upon his return from London where he is taking short course on public sector reform, a Malacañan announcement said.

The reinstatement of Cruz to the latter is a surprising internal reshuffle in the PCGG, head by sabbatical chairperson Benjamin Aldeguer in the handling of the suspected "stepping sideways" his.

The 28-hectare prime property in the Origas financial district is owned by the Mid-Peng Land Development Corp., one of several firms incorporated in the PCGG by businessman Jose Ten Conque for being part of the litigation results of deposed president Ferdinand Marcos.

"Luzviminda began when an agency incident led to the press information that the PCGG leadership led by Chair Canale Aldeguer was quickly negotiating a management arrangement for the suspected Origas lot with Optimum Property Holdings Corp. The company had allegedly already forked over P40.23 million in "cash advance" to PCGG officials over a nine-month period in 2005.

Disabled get P90M deal to supply desks

THE GOVERNMENT of education has awarded a P90-million contract to the National Federation of Cooperatives of Persons with Disabilities (NFCPWD) for the manufacture and supply of an additional 113,300 chairs desks to school public high schools nationwide.

The move is "part of DepEd efforts to give the differently-abled sector a share in the country's economic growth by providing them with high quality school facilities," Secretary Joel A. Lapina said.

"The DepEd 'went to it' that these people which are vital in the education of our children are constructed under a responsible organization with established track records like the NFCPWD," Lapina added.

The NFCPWD groups 12 differently-abled persons' co-operative nationwide -- areas from Laguna, one from the Marikina and three from Marikina -- specializing in the manufacture of school desks and chairs.

The National Council for the Welfare of Disabled Persons of the Department of Social Welfare and Development has notified the federation to the "underwrite organization, list of representatives and differently-abled persons operating in the country."

In the last 10 years, the Special Appropriations Act has allocated 10 percent of the annual DepEd budget to the procurement of dedicated chairs/desks for differently-abled persons' groups.

"This budget for the government program cost total P90 million," Jerry E. Espinosa

Feb. 25 declared nonworking holiday

MANILA (PDI) — PRESIDENT MACAPAGAL-ARROYO has declared Feb. 25 a special nonworking holiday in observance of the 22nd anniversary of the first people power uprising that toppled the Marcos dictatorship.

Executive Secretary Eduardo Irujo said previously this was by virtue of Presidential Decree No. 1466.

The proclamation order is mainly "to give" the nation to observe the "EDSA" event that saw the late dictator Ferdinand Marcos toppled after the four-day people power revolution of 1986, also referred to as EDSA I.

Irujo had earlier said the government was celebrating the 20th anniversary with activities on Feb. 22-23.

Irujo said the Palace was also looking for the anniversary as an occasion to reconcile with its political foes amid the latest corruption scandal and renewed calls for President Macapagal-Arroyo to resign.

Meanwhile, President Arroyo is in an island Presidential Palace in Iloilo which has the original holidays and special nonworking days for this year.

Declared special nonworking holidays were EDSA night on Feb. 24 (Aug. 18, Monday) and the Monday evening Aug. 21 and All Saints' Day (Nov. 1, Sunday). Additional special nonworking days are Dec. 26, Dec. 29 and Dec. 31. (Espinosa/Arroyo)

Poor hygiene costs Pinoys P78B a year, says WB study

By Gracie L. Alano

POOR HYGIENE AND LACK OF TOILETS cost the country billions of pesos in lost work and bereaved families' expenses, according to a nationwide study.

Speaking at the launch of "National Sanitation Year" in Mandaluyong City yesterday, officials from the Department of Health and Department of Environment and Natural Resources disclosed that waterborne diseases cost the government P77.8 billion per year in terms of premature deaths, health-care expenses, lost wages and welfare impact on the environment.

The officials were speaking from the study, "Economic Impact of Sanitation in the Philippines," which was funded by the World Bank's Water and Sanitation Program and the United States Agency for International Development (USAID).

The study said 27.5 million Filipinos possessed no sanitary toilets in their homes, while 13 million Filipinos did not have access to clean water.

As a result, 38 million people are sickened with diarrhea every year, leading to almost 10,000 deaths from the ailment, or 31 people a day, according to the study. Most of these victims are children.

Alarming problem

The study also said that only 3.3 percent of Filipino homes were connected to sewerage treatment facilities. The rest of the day household waste—about 75 percent of the total waste—ended up polluting rivers and seas.

"This alarming problem has serious impact on health, quality of water for homes, hotels and commercial areas, fisheries, greenhouse structures and crops," the WB and USAID said in a statement.

"Even the country's potential to attract tourism is heavily affected by poor sanitation. Tourists may even leave holiday destinations that they visited on a temporary," they said.

They estimated that improving sanitation could help the country raise its revenue from tourism by about 140 million and help achieve its target of five million tourists by 2016.

The report also urged the government to spend more on sanitation infrastructure, giving priority to rural regions and urban slums, areas that have less access to sanitation and were densely populated.

"Once human waste enters the body, the bacteria, parasites and viruses can grow, causing symptoms such as diarrhea, which is common among bacterial infections such as dysentery, cholera, hepatitis A and typhoid," the study said.

The study also recommended that the government conduct an intensive information campaign on health benefits of sanitation and proper hygiene, beginning with hand-washing.

1st Reading: Is 1:10, 10-20
Gospel: Mt 22: 1-12

Jesus said to the twelve and to his disciples, "The kingdom of the law and the prophets on the sons of man, in the end shall do and demand of you, but you do not do it. For they do not do what they say. They do up their bodies and bind them in the shackles of the law, but they do not even enter a finger to move them. They do everything in order to be seen by people, as they wear long robes of the law, several times a week, and observe many things. They enjoy the first place at feasts and married meals in the synagogues, and being greeted in the marketplace and being called Master by the people."

Then you do not let yourselves be called Master because you have only one Master, and all of you are brothers and sisters. But first should you call someone an earth father, because you have only one Father, to whom is heaven. But should you be called fathers, because Christ is the only father for you. At the present moment you are the servant of all. For whoever makes himself great shall be humble, and whoever humbles himself shall be made great."

Commentary
Humility is the virtue that makes itself "low to the earth." A humble person shows that he or she does not accept the name of his or her authority. A humble person, like our Lord, is always aware of the will of others.

None would say that a humble person is far from the self-interest. Humility is not to be far from the truth. A humble person does not think less of himself. He does, however, think of himself less. May our Lord's abiding and good work help us to grow in this important virtue.

Antismuggling body sees P6.8B in revenues

CITY OF SAN FERNANDO.—The Presidential Anti-Smuggling Group has projected at least P6.8 billion in customs revenues from oil, vehicles and other commodities smuggled through the country's numerous ports, the agency's report to President. Managap's report disclosed.

"In the brief time that the PARG is in existence, it has achieved some degree of success but smuggling across, thanks largely to past patronage and the threat of political will that was not strong enough to the public that this time, we really mean business," US documentary accounts Miller

ONE OF THE eight hot cars seized by PARG.

Port of Cebu, port in Marikina City, port in Marikina City and a number in Iloilo, Cebu, and 357 motorcycles and spare parts and engines for 400 motorcycles in Marikina City and Iloilo.

The PARG also seized 12 containers full of used clothing in the Port of Cebu, Port of Marikina, Manila International Container Port and Port of Marikina. It also seized shipments of rice, vegetables, poultry, and computer parts and accessories.

A PARG report said that of the P6.8-billion revenue projection, at least P4.8 billion in duties and taxes had been paid as of January this year. The same largely from PTT's P430 million and 30,000 P900 million.

PTT and P9000, both based in the Asian Bay Transport, were expected to pay the income of Customs more than 100 million P9.15 billion and P5.12 billion, respectively, one of the reports showed.

The agency estimated the value of 340 seized cars as P236.64 million, which could be captured if those were returned all.

UN council fails to agree on Kosovo

UNITED NATIONS—WESTERN STATES RESISTED A RUSSIAN BID to have the UN Security Council block Kosovo's independence declaration on Sunday and said the European Union and Nato would take responsibility for the region's stability.

In emergency council meeting called by Russia failed to bridge differences between Serbia and Kosovo, which says the declaration is illegal, and Western states. The council is the only viable option after failed talks. A statement issued after the meeting by an EU foreign ministers said little doubt that they would be negotiating majority ethnic Albanians in Kosovo but stopped short of saying a vote. A lead is expected from the EU, where foreign ministers met last on Monday.

"We agree that the Security Council cannot agree on the way forward, but that this process has been clear for many months," British Ambassador Adam McFadden said.

"Kosovo's people... represent the conclusion of a status process that has exhausted all avenues in pursuit of a negotiated outcome," he said. It is a statement agreed by Belgium, France, Italy, Britain, Germany, the United States and the United States.

It was also backed by current EU president

Barack Obama.

"We are determined to take up our own responsibilities, as states and through the EU and Nato, to ensure stability and security in the region," the statement said. The EU will be taking over police and justice functions from UN staff, though a UN mission will remain in Kosovo.

Council president Nikolay Mladenov, Albania's deputy of Kosovo confirmed to journalists that the differences between the West and Russia remain basically the same.

The Western statement said the status quo in Kosovo, run by the UN since Nato's military drove out Serb forces nine years ago, had become unsustainable.

It said a 2007 EU resolution provided the framework for transition to a sustainable new status for Kosovo—a position controlled by Russia, which says the resolution required the UN Security Council to approve the declaration. "It is not obvious at all what could point to the legal basis for even considering the recognition of the unilateral declaration of independence," Russian Ambassador Vladimir Lukin said in a statement.

"Our position is that the declaration should be disregarded by the international community and should be declared null and void by the UN Security Council," the UN mission in Kosovo said.

In Moscow, the Russian foreign ministry had earlier warned the United Nations that Russia's declaration of independence from Serbia could cause an escalation in the violence.

But Russian Ambassador Zlatko Kovacic said after the council session: "His country supported the proposal from Russia that the declaration be declared null and void. It is a position that the situation had indeed moved on."

Despite the deadlock at Sunday's closed session, Brussels and Berlin have requested a second, open council meeting on Monday with Serbian President Boris Tadic present.

Western states said they would not oppose the meeting.

Earlier on Sunday the speaker of the Russian parliament announced that Russia was now "an independent, sovereign and democratic state."

Sokor president-elect questioned on fraud charges

MIAMI, SOUTHERN—PRESIDENT-ELECT Joe Whiting, who has been elected to the position of president of the Sokor Republic, is being questioned by special prosecutors on charges that he had engaged in a criminal fraud.

The court ruling, which took place eight days before Joe was scheduled to be sworn in, on Feb. 25, lasted more than three hours. The questioning took place in an outdoor court location, and the information that he was being questioned about was made public, court officials said.

"The investigation team conducted its work to a fair manner and the president-elect answered the questions candidly and honestly," said the judge, special prosecutor, Judge a court ruling for South Korean journalists.

Officials with Joe's transition team were not immediately available for comment.

Joe, who will be the country's first president from a business background, was elected Feb. 19 in a poll in which he would represent South Korea's economy.

He has denied any role in a stock manipulation case that has become a major part of his firing post, a business associate, a source of having worked with in 2004. Joe, who was elected from the United States, is on trial on charges of stock manipulation, obstruction and bribery.

"You must believe Joe's decision, and prosecutors charged him of involvement in the supposed fraud. But opponents of Joe in parliament would not let him take his election to allow a term of independence to begin a new investigation. The move, however, the release of a video clip that showed Joe telling an audience that he had created a company, which led to the stock manipulation, but the film is accused of corrupting Joe.

Joe, 46, was a successful lawyer despite his criminal record.

The special prosecutors are under a public inquiry mission to complete their investigation before Joe's inauguration. Their inquiry was not expected to stop less than taking off. Joe, who is a member in the transition group, has immunity from prosecution. BY

BIR told to make up for cut in corporate tax take

By Michelle K. Remo

THE DEPARTMENT OF REVENUE has directed the Bureau of Internal Revenue to come up with measures to offset the expected lost revenue from the reduction next year in the corporate income tax from 25 to 20 percent.

In a hearing by the Congress oversight committee governing Finance, Secretary Margarito

Trono explained that the government would lose about P15 billion in potential tax collection next year due to the cut. "However, as industries can collect sales tax, it will offset the expected losses from the reduced corporate income tax rate," Trono said after the hearing.

Corporate income tax accounts for about 20 percent of the BIR's total tax collection.

The cut in the corporate income tax rate is provided by the letter-amended Tax Reform Law, or the public law No. 9371. The provision is intended to partly ease the burden on taxpayers brought about by the increase in the value-added tax rate from 10 to 12 percent and the expanded coverage of the VAT.

The government intends to balance its budget this year after 10 years of being in the red, and plans to raise enough revenues to cover expenses in succeeding years.

A balanced budget is expected to help the Philippines get a better credit rating.

During the same hearing, BIR Commissioner Lizardo Alcala said that of the new implementing several measures to increase tax collection, but needed a bigger budget to pull it to fruition.

CNG project falters

By Abigail L. Yu

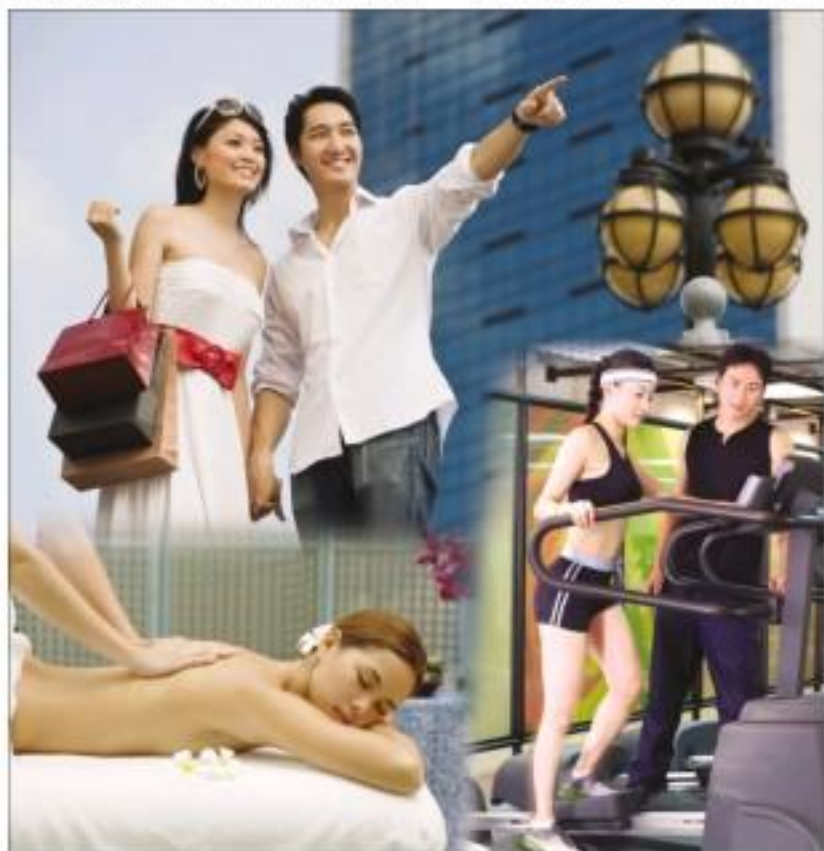

JUST 18 MONTHS after the launch last year of Shell's CNG project in the Philippines, the company has yet to start the commercial sale of compressed natural gas (CNG), leading to its operation paying for interest on their loan without deriving any income from the vehicles.

Shylo Holdings Inc., a subsidiary of public relations at 82, 1261 San Francisco Corp., said there were still some mechanical technical issues that prevented Shell from providing CNG to accredited bus operators.

"There's a mechanical flaw that Shell has yet to resolve. Parts supposed to last a 10-day lifespan under program the month, but all depends on when the technical issues will be resolved," he said.

The Department of Energy expects 200-1200 bus units to be delivered to the country in just a few years. Natural Gas Vehicle Program for Public Transport (NGVPP), 140 buses already have almost been assembled but under the NGVPP, the CNG bus units will be enjoying a more than 30 percent cut in fuel cost, as Shell will sell the CNG at only P1.62 a liter.
